Special Finals Week Edition

Job? What job?

Lantz Gym was the site for Fall '83 graduation as about 450 Eastern students were awarded degrees Sunday. Left: a friend of a graduating student dishes out a congratulatory hug. Specialist suggests study tips

by Beth Lander

Finals are here and even though students may not want to face up to it, it is time to study.

Studying an Eastern testing service worker's suggestions for studying may aid students as they prepare for the exams ahead.

Julie Sterling, of Eastern's testing services, said, "Begin the semester in a positive way, have a planned studying system and work on this during the entire semester.

"Taking a class and cramming for an exam results in a loss of retention of the material. Basically now, as far as finals, we try to impress the plan system," Sterling noted.

"Studying plays a major role. Cramming doesn't help because you have to know the material for long-term memory," she said.

"The student should decide where to study, rewrite notes, ask questions and work with the instructor concerning the exam format," she continued.

"Ask how much time will be needed for the exam. Apply this now by finding out if the exam is comprehensive," she added.

Sterling said students should keep exams handed back by the instructor in order to review and compare exam material.

She noted that it is a good idea for a student to design his own test.

If a student finds the exam he designed different from the instructor's, Sterling said the student may need to schedule an appointment with the instructor for further insight in the course.

In addition, Sterling said students should be aware of objective and essay exam formats. "Finding out whether the test is multiple choice, or essay and how many questions will be on the test is also important."

Other strategies outlined by Sterling were:

- Students should learn to balance their time when taking a test. If a student is blank on a question, he should go on to the next question which may bring on a clue that will help answer the blocked question.

- When taking a multiple choice exam, Sterling said a method which has been found to be helpful is trying to answer the question before looking at the choices, then compare them with your answer.

- Also, for an essay exam, answer the questions that are the easiest first. Sterling said this method makes students feel more confident toward the rest of the questions on the exam.

- Writing a brief outline before writing the essay helps students to organize themselves and they have more time to proofread.

Sterling also advises reviewing notes and keeping up with weekly assignments. "You can't slough off in a semester unless you're gifted. Not even the most intelligent students are able to take a test and do that well without preparation," she said.

Stress

Talk focuses on how to cope with finals

by Beth Lander

The best way to survive the stress of finals week is to follow a study plan, said Sanders, Eastern's Counseling Center director, said.

"Make a plan and stick to it; study first for the exam that is bothering you the most," Sanders said Thursday.

"For example, a student can reduce stress by not studying for English and history when math is the subject that is bothering him the most," he continued.

Sanders suggested that students spend a reasonable amount of time study and then take time out for socializing and exercise. "If students deny those activities that they find rewarding, stress occurs," Sanders said.

Students often overlook relaxing activities as a way of coping with stress during final week and opt for unnatural methods instead, he said.

Many students use stimulants such as caffeine because they fear their exam performance will suffer if they don't, Sanders said.

But Sanders warned that the use of stimulants on a temporary basis can cause long-term stress on the body. "The biggest factor of stress over a long time is that the weakest part breaks down such as the stomach and heart.

"The body performs the best in the way it is used to. If the student throws in a change from drugs, it usually does not work," he added.

"The body is stressed when people try to fool it by staying awake with stimulants. But the body isn't dumb. It will catch up with you, maybe during the exam," he said.

To all our ALPHA TAU sister, you're all so special! Have a very merry Christmas. Love Stephanie and Elizabeth.

Sigma Kappa wish everyone good luck on finals and a happy holiday.

Senda, Good luck on your finals and have a wonderful Christmas! Tau love and mine, your mother.

LISA FIELDS... Can't believe it's been 3-1/2 years since meeting in the "quad"! We'll remember these times as great memories, as we grow older and go our separate ways. We'll miss you, but let's keep in touch — distance won't lessen our friendship! Love, Steph, Suzanne, Kim.

Dear Teri, It seems only yesterday we were two strangers thrown together as freshmen. Here it is four, short years later and we've shared a lifetime of memories. I miss you already! Congrats kiddo, and good luck! Love ya, Chris.

Dear Teri, here's to your 3-1/2 years at EIU. All those times you wished it was near and now it's finally here. Too soon to suit me! Congratulations on your graduation and for all your many accomplishments. (Varied as they are!). To all the good times in the past and in the future. I'm proud of you. Love, LEE.

UNIQUE CHRISTMAS GIFT ideas. This is no cheap pizza.

Oh, sure, we could cut down on the size, use artificial cheese, skimp on the items and then sell it two for one. But we just don't believe in doing business that way.

For over 20 years, we've been making the best pizza we know how, and we've been delivering it free, in 30 minutes or less. Call us, tonight.
